The facilitator should:

- Thank the learners for their active participation during the training
- Tell the group, that as next steps to the training, they need to inform their facility head and manager regarding the training, share the technical material provided for their information, and discuss the key points learned during the training with reference to the changed practices or behaviors currently being followed at the facility. With their support, try and apply as many good practices they have learned during the training as feasible during their routine work
- Reiterate on the importance of using SCC, labor room reorganization, bio-medical waste management, adherence to essential skills and practices and management of complications etc.
- Distribute the certificate of participation and formally close the training. Closing and certificate distribution might be done by an invited guest such as the head of the facility where training is happening or representative from the district health administration or the trainers themselves
